

There is no compelling reason to prevent XM from broadcasting localized information. Let the consumers decide. If traditional radio truly does make a better product, then they have nothing to fear.